

Be a Part of the Literary Iditarod

What: A countywide reading of this year's Sonoma County Reads selection, The Call of the Wild

When: Wednesday, October 1, 2003 -- All Day!

Where: Throughout Sonoma County

On Wednesday, October 1, 2003, the Sonoma County Public Library Foundation will launch Sonoma County Reads with a daylong "Literary Iditarod." Volunteer readers throughout the county will select passages from The Call of the Wild and read aloud for 15 minutes. Anyone who is interested is invited to participate. It's easy! Just do the following:

1. Find a copy of the book (there are 700 at the Sonoma County Library)
2. Choose a passage, and
3. Pick a time and place to read for 15 minutes.

Our goal is to secure at least 100 readers from all corners of Sonoma County. No training required!

If you plan to participate in this fun, entertaining, non-aerobic event, please email Melissa Kelley, president of the Sonoma County Public Library Foundation, at mkelley@sonic.net. (Please note "Literary Iditarod" in the subject line.) Learn more about Sonoma County Reads at www.sonomalibrary.com.

Sonoma County Reads is a month-long event presented by the Sonoma County Public Library Foundation that encourages children and adults throughout Sonoma County to join together and read the same book. The event promotes reading, literacy and library usage. The Library Foundation gratefully acknowledges our sponsors: Community Foundation Sonoma County, Copperfield's Books, Charles Evans, Gallo of Sonoma, KRCB, North Bay Corporation, the Press Democrat and the Sonoma County Library.
